We have been working hard to ensure we have good communication between school and home. Are we getting this right? Is there anything we could do differently to ensure good communication between school and home?

The following are some of the comments received:

- Communication is good. I receive both emails and texts. Also at the end of the day verbal messages are passed on
- Yes. There are also links to the local community events to get involved in as well
- All very good
- Nothing I can think of would make things better
- Text messaging service is great – lots of updates and reminders
- Communication is all OK
- Yes we are happy
- I am very happy with communication. My child had a few issues and I feel we have been very supported
- I am impressed with the school communication
- Too many methods are used – it's hard to keep track / check texts, emails, letters, parent pay
- We are happy with everything
- I have no problems with this
- Yes, I think communication is good
- Yes, I think communication is good. Perhaps using class dojo would be even better
- I've found it really useful: texts, emails and the school website
- Email and text works well
- On text messages it is sometimes hard to know which child it is meant for or which school it has come from
- Happy with communication
- 100%! Communication is fantastic
- Yes and great that local events are mentioned also
- Excellent, especially text reminders
